THE COURSE

Navigating the complex challenges of an ever-changing society requires more than just passion, intuition, or excellent planning. Solutions cannot be found in isolated silos, but through the effective engagement of teams and communities. We need to therefore shift the way we co-create. Collaboration is not only paramount, it is the only way to success.

This course is designed to encourage multi-platform collaboration and to give you the tools you need in order to strengthen your individual leadership skills, to enhance the leadership capacity of a group of collaborators, and to shift outdated paradigms towards better co-creation. We empower people to lead collectively towards a sustainable future.

FACILITATORS

 Douglas F. Williamson

Managing Partner & Senior Project Manager

www.collectiveleadership.com

 Dr. Debbie King

Director

www.intandem.ch

Douglas Williamson is an education, facilitation, and sustainability expert. Having worked with many organisations on partner relationship management, strategic planning and project management, including the UN University and the US Environmental Protection Agency's Climate Change Division, Douglas has a history of success in conceptualizing, planning, co-organizing and implementing a broad variety of projects and initiatives.

Debbie King is the former Chief Probation Officer and Corporate Strategy Officer for the States of Jersey. Responsible for the government's strategic planning, revenue and capital resource allocation, and the civil service's performance management, she has experience managing complex multi-stakeholder projects to successful conclusion.

THE COLLECTIVE LEADERSHIP COMPASS

Based on over twenty years' experience helping people to collaborate effectively, the Collective Leadership Institute has developed a six-point guide for teams, organisations and corporations. This tool inspires and advocates leadership as a collective endeavour, and sets out a step-by-step guide for future change-makers on this training course. By learning the philosophies and practices described within the Collective Leadership Compass, you will take away the knowledge and mindset to inspire quality collaboration and drive change for the better.
